Applied syllabus study plan requirements — July 2018

Applied syllabuses provide opportunity for schools to develop teaching, learning and assessment appropriate for their context. A study plan, developed by the school, outlines how the course of study will be delivered and assessed based on the relevant Applied syllabus. Approved study plans are used by the QCAA when quality assuring the implementation of the syllabus.

Schools create study plans in the study plan builder application in the QCAA Portal. Study plan requirements are outlined below.

Components of the study plan

Course organisation	The study plan provides information about the structure of the school's proposed course. The way the course is organised and sequenced should align with requirements outlined in the 'Course overview — Planning a course of study' section of the syllabus. It should include: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• an overview of the four-unit course showing sequences of core and elective study• proposed time allocation for each module of work, ensuring the minimum number of hours of timetabled school time for the four-unit course of study (220 hours)• three core perspectives of human experience — personal, relational and spiritual integrated in a minimum of four and a maximum of eight electives.• four to eight modules of work across the four-unit course of study that meet syllabus requirements ('Planning a course of study' and 'Developing a module of work' sections of the syllabus). Schools must: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• study each elective for no more than one module of work but no less than 20 hours, to ensure adequate depth of coverage• use the core areas — the personal, relational and spiritual perspectives — to organise the integration of the concepts, ideas, knowledge, understanding and skills into each elective• ensure that each perspective is covered within each elective• ensure a balance of the three perspectives across the course of study, although there may be more emphasis on a particular perspective in any one elective.
